"She has the merit (in our judgment most essential) of being evidently a Christian writer, a merit which is much enhanced, both on the score of good taste and of practical utility, by her religion being not at all obstraidve; her moral lessons though clearly and impressively conveyed, are not offensively put forward, but aprus incidentally from the circumstances of the story. She does not deal in fiends and angels, but here is that unpretending kind of instruction which is furnished by real life; her stories appear to be in their own way nearly faultiess. The rivid distinctness of description, the minute fidelity of detail and air of unstudied case in the scene represented, she possesses in a high degree. On the whole, Miss Ansen's works may afely be recommended not only as among the most unexaceptionate of their class, but as combining in an eminent degree instruction with amosement."

"The author's knowledge of the world and the peculiar tact with which she presents the characters that the reader cannot fail to recognize, remmd us something of the merits of the Fleudsh school of painting; they are finished up to nature, and with a precision which deligits the trader. We therefore bestow no mean compliment upon Miss Antenc's writings when we say that, keeping close to common incidents and to such characters as occupy the ordinary walks of life, she has produced shetches of such spirit and originality that we never miss the excitation which depends upon a marrative of uncommon events. As a panter of Engals and originality that we never miss the excitation which depends upon a marrative

THE RIFLE AND THE ROD.

BY S. H. HAMMOND

Author of "Hills Lakes and Forest Streams," etc.

From the Author's Preface.

The scenery I have attempted to describe—the lakes, rivers, mountains, islands, rocks, valleys and streams, will be found as recorded in this volume

I was over a portion of that wilderness last summer and found plenty of trout and abundance of deer. I heard the hewl of the wolf the servam of the panther, and the hourse believ of the moose.

For myself, I have come to regard these mountains those lakes and streams, those old forests, and all this wild region, as my settled summer reset, instead of the discomfacts, the jam, the excitement, and the nursest of the discomfacts, the jam, the excitement, and the nursest of the discomfacts, the jam, the ratural chemic was, their transcendant beauty, their brilliant mornings, then a rious sunsets, their quiet and repose. I visit them too, because when among them, I can take off the armor which one is compiled to wear, and remove the watch which one must set over himself, in the crowded throughfaces of life; because I can whistle, sing, shout, hurral and be jolly, without exciting the ridicule or provoking the contempt of the world. In short, because I can go back to the days of old, and think, and act and feel like a "a boy again."
